
Comparison between solar room and glass sun room

What is the difference between a solarium and a sunroom?

Unlike solariums, which consist entirely of glass walls and ceilings, a sunroom is an add-on room surrounded by large windows. Sometimes, sunrooms will have skylights of sorts to let in additional light. Sunrooms tend to have higher resale values. According to some studies, sunrooms can recoup 47% of their investment.

Is a sunroom the same as a regular room?

A sunroom is not the same as a regular room. Although it has more windows, its roof is solid and offers more protection from the sun if necessary.

Should you buy a solarium or a sunroom?

If you want ample sunlight and to feel immersed in nature, a solarium is ideal for you and your family. It also serves as a great year-round space for indoor gardening. On the other hand, if your budget allows, and you're looking for a multi-purpose space, a sunroom might be preferable.
