How much money does Finland spend on public procurement?

In Finland roughly 45 billion euros are yearly spent by the government, municipalities and congregations on the procurement of goods, services and public works. Finnish public procurement is subject to national procurement legislation which derives from the European Community directives on public procurement.

Is public procurement regulated in Finland?

The procurement of goods, services and public works in general is subject to procurement regulation, with specific exceptions. Even though the Finnish Public Procurement Acts do not in general distinguish between bidders within and outside the EU, there are a few exceptions.

Who supervises public procurements in Finland?

The Finnish Competition and Consumer Authority supervises public procurements. If you suspect that the procurement has not been made in accordance with the Act on Public Contracts, you can submit a request for measures free of charge or tip off the Finnish Competition and Consumer Authority.

How does Finnish public procurement work?

Finnish public procurement legislation allows for the exclusion of tenderers based on mandatory grounds, such as certain criminal convictions (e.g., corruption, fraud) or tax violations, and discretionary grounds, including grave professional misconduct or prior non-performance.

The national procurements are subject to a lighter regime. Finland adheres to the World Trade Organisation's (WTO) Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA). 2. What
